1 Barton, assistant attorney general, here on behalf of the 2 defendants.
 3 THE COURT: All right. And I'm giving you an 4 hour for everything, so we'll begin with the pro hac vice 5 motion. You can go ahead.
 6 MR. STEINBERG: Good morning, your Honor. My 7 name is Michael J. Steinberg. I'm the legal director for 8 for the American Civil Liberties Union.
 9 And it is my honor and pleasure to move this 10 Court for permission for four outstanding attorneys to 11 appear before this Court for this important case to reform 12 the indigent defense system in the State of Michigan. The 13 attorneys are Emily Chiang, Elizabeth Kennedy, Julie 14 North, and Robin Dahlberg.
 15 All have outstanding academic credentials,
 16 graduating from such schools as Harvard and Stanford.
 17 Three of the four have worked on the Montana case that 18 successfully reformed the indigent defense system there.
 19 One of the attorneys, Robin Dahlberg, was the lead 20 attorney in a similar case in both Pennsylvania and 21 Connecticut.
 22 I've had the pleasure of working with them for 23 the past two years preparing this case. And I can 24 personally vouch that they have the highest ethical 25 standards. They're all admitted in the State of New York.

CondenseIt!™

Page 5

1 And, most importantly, I'm sure your Honor will be happy
2 to know that none of them have New York accents.
3 I believe that this is an unopposed motion. And 4 should this Court grant the motion, we have prepared 5 orders.
6 THE COURT: And Mr. Potchen.
7 MR. POTCHEN: We're not opposing the motion.
8 THE COURT: All right. Motion granted. All
9 right. Thank you.
10 MR. STEINBERG: That was -- you just signed one.
11 I don't know if you want to sign all four.
12 THE COURT: Are they all different or are they 13 the same?
14 MR. STEINBERG: There's an order for each
15 attorney. I'm sorry.
16 THE COURT: I guess I should have looked. And 17 is Robin Dahlberg here?
18 MR. STEINBERG: No. She's not. Thank you, your 19 Honor.
20 THE COURT: You're welcome. Next on the summary
21 disposition motion. Mr. Potchen, you can go ahead.
22 MR. POTCHEN: Good morning, your Honor.
23 THE COURT: Good morning.
24 MR. POTCHEN: We realize that you have been 25 inundated with much paperwork and much briefing in this

Page 6

1 case. And I really want to put this lawsuit and our 2 motion in its simplest forms.
3 The plaintiffs in this case want this Court to 4 order Governor Granholm to centralize county public 5 defense systems, because they claim the counties aren't 6 doing their job. They seek to turn the constitutional 7 right to counsel on its head in an attempt to force
8 Governor Granholm to act.
9 No longer is there a right to protection against 10 improper governmental action. Rather, according to the 11 plaintiffs, Governor Granholm is somehow required to fund 12 and oversee public defense systems in these three 13 counties. They want this Court to recognize a duty that 14 has never been recognized in the State of Michigan. We 15 completely recognize this is a pre-conviction claim. It's 16 our position that they cannot force Governor Granholm to 17 increase funding or oversee public defenders in their 18 criminal cases.
19 At issue in our motion is the relief that 20 they're seeking against the governor and the state
21 generally. While they may not agree with Michigan's 22 system, this does not entitle them to the relief that 23 they're seeking.
24 I want to also be clear that this motion is not 25 a review of the public defense systems in these three

Page 7

1 counties. We are not saying that the public defense
2 systems can't be improved. We acknowledge that many 3 groups have done studies of the public defense systems 4 throughout the State of Michigan and in these counties.
5 And we don't question that other states have different 6 public service defense systems.
7 But in Michigan the statute allocates money to 8 the counties through the Court Equity Fund. This is 9 overseen by the judiciary branch and specifically the 10 county treasurer, not Governor Granholm.
11 Plaintiffs claim this amount is grossly 12 insufficient at paragraph 89 of their complaint. If they 13 want an increase of this amount, then the legislature
14 needs to do it, not Governor Granholm.
15 In Michigan by statute the counties control
16 indigent defense systems. It has historically been a 17 decentralized system. If the counties are not providing 18 adequate indigent defense services, then they need to sue 19 those local counties, not the state or the governor.
20 Now, I want to address their specific relief 21 that they're asking for. As to the declaratory relief 22 that they seek, the plaintiffs here have failed to show an 23 actual injury in fact. Their claims are based on a 24 conjecturally hypothetical injury. They simply presume 25 they are going to be convicted. And they presume that

Page 8

1 everyone who has a public defender is going to receive 2 poor counsel, inadequate counsel.
3 Also their claims are speculative. There's no 4 showing that they're alleged injury is going to be 5 redressed by a unfavorable decision. The plaintiffs here
6 could be represented by the best trained, most highly paid 7 attorneys in the state and still be convicted. Or they 8 could be represented by the public defenders and not be 9 convicted.
10 They haven't even alleged that they have sought
11 a new counsel or the Court has denied them new counsel.
12 This is why the courts in Minnesota and Indiana have 13 thrown out such cases. And I'm specifically referring to 14 the cases cited in our reply brief, that's the Kennedy
15 case that was brought by the public defender in Minnesota 16 and the Platt case brought by the criminal defendants in 17 Indiana. Those are attached to our brief, your Honor.
18 In both of those cases --
19 THE COURT: At which tab?
20 MR. POTCHEN: Pardon?
21 THE COURT: At which tab?
22 MR. POTCHEN: It would be tabs 2 and 3 in our -- 23 tab 2 is the Minnesota case --
24 THE COURT: I've got it.
25 MR. POTCHEN: -- and tab 3 is the Platt case.

CondenseIt!™

1 THE COURT: Yes.

2 MR. POTCHEN: Both of those cases, your Honor,

3 recognized that ineffective counsel claims arise only

4 after the defendant has shown some prejudice. This is a

5 showing that the proceeding was somehow unreliable. That

6 is the Strickland test. And that's what applies here,

7 even in pre-conviction claims.

8 Here the plaintiffs are attempting to do what

9 courts have repeatedly said is not the purpose of the 10 sixth amendment. They're asking this Court to recognize a

11 general constitutional standard for attorneys' conduct

12 without regard to the specific facts of an individual

13 case.

14 Now, they are calling it systemic equitable

15 relief. No U.S. Supreme Court case or Michigan case has 16 ever set such a standard. The cases actually have warned

17 against setting such a standard.

18 And quoting from Strickland at page 689, the 19 purpose of the effective assistance guarantee of the sixth

20 amendment is not to improve legal representation. To have

21 a viable ineffective assistance of counsel claim the

22 plaintiffs must show that counsel's performance fell below

23 an objective standard of reasonableness and this deficient

24 performance resulted in prejudice.

25 That is the same test followed in Michigan.

1 paragraph 136. They want motion fees at paragraph 137.

2 They want training to provide better representation at 3 paragraph 130 through 140.

4 They want increased oversight, which would

5 include statewide standards for eligibility, attorney

6 training, access to resources, at paragraph 94. And they

7 presumably want the governor to oversee the SCAO at 8 paragraphs 95 and 96.

9 These again are the tools they claim are

10 necessary to ensure adequate counsel for indigent

11 defendants. All of these tools require money. These

12 tools are not free. Clearly the relief they're seeking

13 involves an appropriation from the state treasury. And 14 pursuant to article 9, section 17 only the legislature can 15 appropriate the money.

16 Additionally, as our brief makes clear, since

17 their claim is a constitutionally based claim seeking

18 monetary relief, it belongs in the Court of Claims.

19 Additionally, it's our position that this Court

20 cannot issue mandatory injunctive relief against the 21 governor in the manner requested by the plaintiffs.

22 That's the Straus case. It would violate the separation

23 of powers.

24 Even if plaintiffs got through all these

25 procedural steps, they have failed to allege a viable

1 They must show some individual prejudice. So the 2 declaratory relief is improper.

3 As to the injunctive relief, they have simply

4 sued the wrong parties. The counties finance and control

5 indigent defense at the trial level through statute. And

6 this is recognized in the Grand Traverse case. It is up

7 to the legislature to change the system. If the counties

8 are not getting enough money, the judiciary can use its

9 inherent power to get it. That's the 46th Circuit Trial

10 Court decision.

11 They continually claim in their response and in 12 other pleadings that they are not seeking monetary relief.

13 You only need to look at the complaint to see that they 14 are seeking monetary relief. That's what they want.

15 And I'm going to quote from -- or just identify

16 specific portions of their complaint where it's clearly

17 monetary relief. They want -- these are the tools they

18 say that are needed. They want the same or similar

19 training as prosecuting attorneys at paragraph 91. They

20 want access to the Michigan State Police Forensic Science

21 Division at paragraph 92.

22 They want reimbursement of collect calls to

23 counsel at paragraph 134. They want the ability to hire

24 investigators at paragraph 135. They apparently want

25 money for copying court files and police records at

1 claim. The purpose, as I've said earlier, of the 2 constitutional right to counsel is to protect against

3 improper government action.

4 If a criminal defendant is not provided counsel

5 in accord with the constitution, they may petition the 6 Court for counsel, if one's not given, or they can

7 petition for new counsel if their present counsel is not

8 properly assisting them during critical phases. That is

9 their precondition -- pre-conviction remedy. Or if they

10 do get convicted, the recourse is to appeal the 11 conviction, or they can file a habeas action. That is 12 their post-conviction remedy. So the plaintiffs have an 13 adequate remedy at law.

14 Now, we fully expect, as they did in their

15 briefs, to rely -- plaintiffs to rely on the Luckey

16 decision. The Luckey decision is simply a wrong decision.

17 This Court should be aware that there were five different

18 opinions issued in the Luckey line of cases. The one that 19 they are relying on is generally referred to as Luckey I.

20 In Luckey II, which is cited in our brief, that

21 was a request for a rehearing of Luckey I. In Luckey II

22 the dissent noted that Luckey I was inconsistent with

23 Strickland and Cronin and should be reviewed. They also

24 noted in Luckey II that there was no abstract right to a

25 particular level of representation.

Page 15

1 And this is a quote taken directly from Luckey
2 II at page 480. Because prejudice is an essential element
3 of any sixth amendment violation, the sixth amendment
4 claims cannot be adjudicated apart from the circumstances 5 of a particular case.

6 Put differently, no claim for relief can be 7 stated in general terms, as was attempted here. That 8 means, your Honor, that you must look at the individual 9 cases. And that shows why they haven't stated a viable 10 claim.

11 But there's an additional problem with Luckey.
12 That case, in Luckey V, was vacated on abstention grounds.
13 The Court never addressed the issues raised in the case 14 technically. They got over the motion, but they never 15 addressed the actual viable cause of action.

16 So it's our position that Luckey I is bad law 17 and should not be followed by this Court. We believe this 18 Court should follow the Minnesota case, Kennedy, and the 19 Indiana Platt case, again attached to our briefs. Their 20 reasoning in our opinion is more consistent with the U.S.
21 Supreme Court and the Michigan Supreme Court precedent.

22 Again, on the other aspects of our motion, the 23 procedural due process claim, they are not claiming 24 they've been denied counsel. In fact they've been 25 assigned counsel. They haven't made the claim they have

1 THE COURT: All right. Thank you. Who's 2 responding?

3 MR. BAMAN: Good morning, your Honor. My name
4 is Frank Baman. I'm one of the plaintiffs' counsel of 5 record on the complaint. With the permission of the Court 6 I'm going to make some brief introductory remarks, as my 7 opponent suggested addressing this complaint in its 8 simplest form, then Emily Chiang will address the 9 arguments of the defendants more particularly.

10 Your Honor, I'm a criminal defense lawyer. I've 11 been a criminal defense lawyer for 35 years. As the Court 12 can see from some of the exhibits that we filed I've been 13 deeply involved in indigent defense reform through the 14 State Bar, through the committee on assigned counsel 15 standards, through articles that have been written about 16 the necessity to reform the criminal justice system.

17 And as our exhibits suggest, this starts way 18 back when now federal Judge Paul Borman was the 19 chairperson of the indigent defense committee of the State 20 Bar.

21 Four of our presidents -- one of those articles
22 we have attached as an exhibit -- have written editorials
23 in the bar journal that say that the systems in Michigan 24 do not meet constitutional muster and change has to 25 happen.

1 not been assigned counsel. So they've had the notice and 2 the opportunity to be heard.

3 It's their claim they just want to be heard
4 better by having the governor oversee indigent defense
5 services. Michigan has never recognized such a procedural 6 due process claim.

7 And finally, your Honor, as to the immunity, 8 since the plaintiffs' claim clearly is sounded in 9 constitutional tort, and this case necessarily involves 10 monetary relief and some money from the state treasury, 11 both the governor and state are immune. The governor 12 acting within the scope of her authority as to the federal 13 claims and being sued in her official capacity is not 14 recognized as a person for the section 1983 claim. It 15 appears the 11th amendment may also preclude those claims.

16 As to the state claims, the plaintiffs have not 17 shown they fit into any of the exceptions outlined for 18 blanket governmental immunity. There is no case for 19 damages against the state or its governor.

20 Your Honor, therefore, for the variety of 21 reasons outlined here and in our briefs, we request this 22 Court to grant our motion.

23 THE COURT: And are you asking for rebuttal too 24 on this motion?

25 MR. POTCHEN: Yes, your Honor.

1 So it's no secret, no secret to me as a criminal
2 defense lawyer what I see in court every day, and it's no 3 secret to those involved in the legal system that the 4 indigent defense system in Michigan falls far short of the 5 Gideon standards and the sixth amendment standard we seek 6 to enforce in this complaint.

7 And why is this? The reason is that this state, 8 unlike most other states in this country, did not react to 9 Gideon by doing anything. The system we have in place, 10 the county system that the defense refers to, was created 11 in the 19th century before Gideon existed. After Gideon 12 was decided in 1963 the state did nothing, did nothing to 13 provide indigent defense.

14 I find it interesting that in the remarks of 15 counsel this morning and in all the pleadings they filed 16 nowhere do they ever suggest that the systems in place do 17 meet constitutional muster, that these systems do comply 18 with the sixth amendment. They're doing what we as 19 criminal defense attorneys often get accused of all the 20 time. They are using technicalities to try to avoid, in 21 this case, the application of the constitution.

22 As lawyers we all take an oath to be faithful.
23 All elected officials all take oaths to be faithful and to 24 defend the constitution. I would suggest if anybody came 25 into the court and opposed our complaint and did suggest

Condenselt!™

1 that these systems complied with the constitution, they 2 may be violating their oath as well as stating something 3 we can easily disprove.

4 But this is not about proof. And opposing 5 counsel said we must show this or we must show that. At 6 this point it's about whether we've pled adequately for 7 this case to go forward, and we believe we have.

8 And an example I hope can demonstrate that. And 9 that is surely if these plaintiffs had no appointed 10 counsel, and there was no system in place in any of these 11 counties, the Court would have an opportunity and an 12 obligation and a duty to step up and order that defense be 13 provided in accordance with Gideon.

14 And I might say we are here not to enforce 15 strict language. We are here to enforce Gideon. And if 16 there were no system, the Court would under Gideon order 17 that appointed counsel be provided.

18 But what we are alleging in the complaint is 19 there is next to no system. There is a system, and in the 20 words of -- of the Supreme Court in Avery versus Alabama, 21 which we cite in Exhibit E, which is cited by the trial
22 judge in Stinson versus Fulton County, where the request 23 for such a motion as the Court is hearing today was 24 denied, that the denial of the opportunity to confer with 25 counsel, to consult with counsel, to prepare turns the

1 That is plainly not the case here, and 2 defendants' motion should be denied. Defendants' motion 3 is just another effort by the state to avoid 4 constitutional responsibilities in an effort to distract
5 the Court from the fact that the state is sending indigent 6 persons to jail without an adequate opportunity to be 7 heard or effective assistance of counsel. Defendants 8 cited to legal standards that do not apply and alluded to 9 remedies that plaintiffs do not seek. I'm going to focus 10 on four items I think this Court should pay particular 11 attention to.

12 The first one is that cases like this are 13 routinely brought and permitted to proceed to discovery, 14 which is all we ask that the Court do today. The second 15 is that the Strickland standard is inapplicable. It's 16 pre-conviction cases for systemic relief. The third is 17 that because Strickland does not apply, plaintiffs do have 18 standing, and our claims are ripe. And finally, fourth, 19 that our claims are not for money damages, and so
20 jurisdiction before this Court isn't proper.

21 So turning to the first issue, which is whether 22 we have asserted a claim upon which relief can be granted, 23 I would like to note for this Court that, you know,
24 defendants imply that the only case we have to support -- 25 to support our claim is Luckey versus Harris. That's

1 appointment system into a sham.

2 And that's what our complaint alleges. And we 3 believe it is sufficient to get constitutional relief
4 under Gideon.

5 And now I ask Ms. Chiang to address directly the 6 arguments of the defense.

7 MS. CHIANG: Bless you.

8 THE COURT: Allergy season.

9 MS. CHIANG: The worse. Good morning, your 10 Honor. Emily Chiang from the ACLU. As Mr. Eaman
11 indicated, I will address the substantive arguments 12 defendants raised.

13 I want to make it clear at the outset, the 14 proceeding here today isn't about what the applicable 15 remedy is should this Court find that defendants are 16 ultimately liable for implementing a constitutionally 17 inadequate system. In other words, it's not about whether 18 the remedy is a statewide public defender office or 19 increased funding or increased expert investigators or 20 training.

21 The question before this Court is a simple one.
22 It's a (C)(8) motion which should only be granted if 23 plaintiffs have failed to allege a claim. So it's not 24 about the remedy. It's merely about whether plaintiffs 25 have sufficiently alleged facts to state a claim.

1 simply not the case.

2 As we pointed out in four pages of our 3 opposition brief, litigants in at least 11 other 4 jurisdictions raised claims almost exactly like the ones
5 asserted here. In every one of those cases defendants 6 moved to dismiss, just as they have here. And in every 7 case but one the courts denied those motions finding that 8 plaintiffs had asserted a viable cause of action.

9 Defendants talk a lot about the two decisions in 10 Platt and Kennedy versus Carlson. I would note that 11 Kennedy is distinguishable on its facts, because if you 12 take a look at that case, the Court found -- first of all, 13 Kennedy was permitted to proceed to discovery. Secondly,
14 it's distinguishable on its facts, because after discovery 15 the Court held that plaintiffs had failed to make any 16 allegations of injury to indigent defendants. Whereas 17 here in contrast plaintiffs have made ample allegations of 18 such injuries.

19 I would also like to note for the Court that 20 Platt is the only case to have a dismissed claim like 21 plaintiffs at the summary disposition stage. No other 22 court before or after has followed its reasoning, and 23 numerous courts have explicitly rejected that reasoning.

24 To the extent that defendants rely on a dissent
25 in Luckey, I would argue that that's simply unpersuasive

CondenseIt!™

1 as no other Court has adopted the Luckey dissent reasoning
2 other than the Platt court back in 1996.

3 We have 11 other jurisdictions that have let 4 these cases proceed. Why did they let them go forward?
5 Because they understood that the appropriate standard for 6 this Court today is whether we've adequately pled to show 7 that we are deserving of equitable relief.

8 And the standard for equitable relief set out by 9 the U.S. Supreme Court in O'Shea versus Littleton is 10 simply that we have shown the likelihood of substantial 11 and immediate irreparable injury with inadequate remedies
12 at law. We have properly alleged both.

13 Defendants claim we haven't made any showing of 14 harm, that our claims are hypothetical, speculative, no 15 one suffered anything yet because no one's been convicted.
16 That's simply not the case. As we alleged in our 17 complaint, plaintiffs have made ample allegations of harm, 18 both that plaintiffs have already suffered and that 19 plaintiffs will -- are at immediate risk of suffering 20 should relief not be granted.

21 I'll give the Court the example of one of our 22 named plaintiffs, Jennifer O'Sullivan. This is a woman 23 who has a claim coming out of Genesee County. She has 24 been sitting in jail, county detention facility, since 25 September. She did not hear any word from her attorney

1 plaintiff has to wait until they've actually been 2 convicted. I would also note those types of appeals don't 3 provide systemic equitable relief against the defendants, 4 which we seek here today.

5 So what else did those 11 other jurisdictions do 6 that this Court should do? They recognized that the 7 Strickland standard does not apply to systemic, 8 pre-conviction challenges.

9 Defendants argue that Strickland applies 10 everywhere, that any time you bring any case under the 11 sixth amendment you have to show the prejudice required by 12 the Strickland court. But if you take a look at the 13 Strickland decision itself, it explicitly states it only 14 applies to claims for post-conviction, individual, 15 ineffective assistance of counsel claims.

16 I can quote from the case directly, when it lays 17 it out right -- before it lays out the two-part test we're 18 all familiar with. The Court says, a convicted 19 defendant's claim that counsel's assistance was so
20 defective as to require reversal of a conviction or death 21 sentence has two components. And the opinion also makes 22 it very clear that it's setting out a really stringent 23 standard, because the standard only applies after you've 24 been convicted.

25 Post-conviction relief raises unique concerns

1 until sometime in January. That's four months that she 2 sat in county detention facility.

3 She has three young children at home, ages two, 4 four and six, who were separated from one another, one of 5 whom was actually placed into foster care. She hasn't 6 seen her kids since she's been in county detention 7 facility. And it wasn't until May that she was able to 8 receive a preliminary examination. I would argue, and I
9 hope this Court would agree, that that constitutes 10 irreparable harm.

11 We have also adequately alleged that we have no
12 adequate remedy at law. Defendants suggests that, well, 13 defendants -- plaintiffs should make motions for 14 substitution of counsel, or they can wait until they've 15 been convicted and bring a direct appeal or bring a habeas 16 petition. None of these remedies is an adequate remedy at 17 law. The rule is that jurisdiction depends, not upon the 18 absence of a legal remedy, but upon its inadequacies.
19 Those remedies are plainly inadequate.

20 If a plaintiff makes a motion for substitution 21 of counsel, that plaintiff is simply going to be getting 22 an attorney who has to function within the same
23 systemically inadequate system and will still be at risk 24 of harm.

25 Direct appeals and habeas claims means that the

1 that aren't before this Court today because plaintiffs 2 only raised pre-conviction claims. When you already have 3 a conviction before you, you have concerns of finality.
4 You have concerns of not second-guessing defense counsel.
5 You don't want to end up conducting a mini trial on what 6 defense counsel did do and didn't do.

7 And the Court even noted in Strickland you don't 8 want to discourage people from actually becoming defense 9 counsel. None of those concerns are relevant here, and 10 the Strickland standard is inapplicable.

11 Defendant suggests that all pre-conviction
12 claims have to be brought on a case-by-case basis. This 13 is simply not true, as evidenced by the many other courts 14 that have recognized these type of claims. Because the 15 Strickland standard doesn't apply, plaintiffs don't have 16 to allege or prove individual harm on a case-by-case 17 basis. What we do have to allege, and what we have 18 alleged, is actual or imminent injury that is concrete and 19 particularized.

20 Because we have made those allegations, we do 21 have standing. There is actual injury that is going on 22 and that will not end until this Court grants the 23 equitable relief that plaintiffs seek. Because we have 24 alleged to have ongoing harm and imminent risk of further 25 injury, plaintiffs claims are ripe. Essentially

1 defendants have created a system or allowed to pre-exist a 2 system that is so systemically inadequate that all 3 plaintiffs, all class members, are at imminent risk of 4 harm. Therefore, their claims are justiciable by this 5 Court. 6 Incidentally, I'd like to note for this Court 7 that no court in the United States has ever held that 8 plaintiffs have to wait until each and every one of their 9 constitutional rights are actually violated to bring suit. 10 So, for example, if we would have brought a 11 systemic claim on the behalf of foster children 12 challenging the state's failure to provide an adequate 13 child welfare system, no one would say, well, each and 14 every one of those kids has to show that they were 15 actually physically abused by their foster parents before 16 a court can find that the state is liable for a 17 constitutionally defective system. 18 That's exactly what happens here. The 19 reliability of a trial system as a whole can be challenged 20 prior to conviction. And plaintiffs do not have to show 21 that each one of them has actually suffered some sort of 22 constitutional harm before they can bring suit. It is 23 sufficient to allege that they are at imminent risk of 24 such harm. 25 Defendants also raise a number of -- of	1 That doesn't mean that the state isn't still 2 ultimately responsible if that prison company has created 3 unconstitutional conditions of confinement. The state 4 can't simply say, well, I delegated it. It's not my 5 problem any more. It is the state's problem, and the 6 constitution says it is. 7 The existence of other possible lawsuits or 8 means of fixing a system doesn't preclude plaintiffs from 9 bringing the claims we have brought. We could have sued 10 the counties, but we chose not to, and they are not a 11 necessary party. Frankly, if the defendants wish to 12 implead the counties, they are free to do so. 13 They cite a number of cases that they've pointed 14 this Court to, showing that this is the way things have 15 always been done in Michigan, cases like Grand Traverse 16 County or cases involving suits brought, you know, by 17 public defenders trying to seek more money for their 18 systems. Not a single one of those cases was brought on 19 behalf of indigent defendants who were alleging a 20 violation of their constitutional rights. That is the 21 case that is before the Court today. 22 I would also argue that this Court should reject 23 defendant's attempts to characterize the suit as being 24 about money damages. Plaintiffs seek only equitable 25 relief.
Page 26 1 permutations I guess for this Court to consider, different 2 types of cases that could be brought, you know, suggesting 3 that we could have sued the counties or maybe the judges 4 could have done something or maybe the legislature should 5 be doing something. 6 I would note that plaintiffs have sued the 7 defendants, these particular defendants, namely the 8 governor and the state, because the responsibility for 9 indigent defense in Michigan begins and ends with those 10 defendants. 11 Defendant suggests that, well, this is the way 12 it's always been in Michigan. The governor has never done 13 anything to fund or otherwise oversee indigent defense 14 systems. 15 That doesn't mean that the governor doesn't have 16 ultimate responsibility under the constitution, both state 17 and federal, under the case of Gideon, which we should all 18 remember today to ultimately ensure that whatever it is 19 the counties are doing, they have to be doing it in 20 compliance with the constitution. 21 To take another example, the state could 22 delegate any number of constitutional responsibilities if 23 it wanted to. It could, for example, delegate its 24 responsibility to run the prison system to a private 25 company, contract that out.	Page 28 1 Everyone recognizes in this room that Michigan 2 is in the middle of a serious financial crisis, but the 3 defendants are trying to distract this Court from the real 4 issue of whether they're ultimately responsible for a 5 broken defense system by focusing on how much it would 6 cost to fix that broken defense system. 7 If we want to enter into a stipulation as to the 8 system's inadequacies, plaintiffs would be more than happy 9 to move directly to a remedy phase to talk about things 10 like how much would it cost, what sort of system should be 11 implemented. But if defendants aren't willing to concede 12 those constitutional inadequacies, their arguments are 13 irrelevant. This Court has to rule on who is even 14 responsible. 15 I would also note defendants contend this has to 16 be a case about money because, look, all of the things 17 that you ask for are going to be really expensive. You 18 want investigators. You want experts. You want access to 19 training. You want standards. Well, isn't that going to 20 cost money? 21 Absolutely. But that's not the issue. The fact 22 that injunctive relief may result in the expenditure of 23 some money at some future date doesn't deprive this Court 24 of jurisdiction or make this Court a case about money 25 damages. In fact pretty much any time plaintiffs seek

1 injunctive relief, to the extent that they prevail, 2 someone somewhere is going to have to spend some amount of 3 money.

4 To take a classic example of the school
5 desegregation cases, you have a class action in Brown
6 versus Board of Ed. The Court orders injunctive relief, 7 the Supreme Court ordered injunctive relief finding 8 defendants were in violation of their constitutional 9 responsibilities. And it said defendants had to do what 10 it took to desegregate the schools.

11 That cost a lot of money. It required bussing.
12 It was socially disruptive. I'm sure it wasn't cheap. It 13 doesn't mean that the Court didn't have jurisdiction to 14 grant that sort of equitable relief. And it didn't make 15 that case about damages.

16 Similarly, the relief that we request here may 17 ultimately result in the expenditure of some amount of 18 moneys from the state. But that doesn't mean that we've 19 made a damages claim, and it doesn't mean that 20 jurisdiction properly belongs in the circuit court -- I'm 21 sorry, in the Court of Claims, I misspoke.

22 The Court of Claims was created to handle suits
23 for money damages against the state --

24 THE COURT: You're running out of time.

25 MS. CHIANG: Pardon?

Page 30

1 THE COURT: You're running out of time --

2 MS. CHIANG: I will --

3 THE COURT: -- I do know what the Court of 4 Claims is.

5 MS. CHIANG: Pardon?

6 THE COURT: I know what the Court of Claims is.

7 MS. CHIANG: That's great. I'll move on to the 8 next point, immunity.

9 Defendants argue that both the governor and the 10 state are immune. I will note quickly for the Court that 11 even if you can't grant injunctive relief on our state 12 claims, which we concede, defendants don't dispute that 13 you can grant as much relief on our federal claims under 14 Felder, F-e-l-d-e-r. Federal rules would apply to our 15 federal claims.

16 The defendants' arguments about immunity are 17 also unavailing, because as they note, the immunity 18 statute covers tort liability. This case does not sound 19 in tort. It is not a claim of private injury that can be 20 addressed by damages. Rather, it is a claim for systemic 21 relief on behalf of a class of plaintiffs for whom the 22 only sufficient relief would be equitable relief.

23 And finally, I would note that the state also 24 doesn't have immunity under 691.1407, because it is clear 25 under state law that that provision doesn't apply when the

1 state is being sued for a violation of its own
2 constitution.

3 So in closing, to wrap things up, when making a 4 systemic challenge such as ours, it's very clear from a 5 variety of cases, both in the indigent defense reform
6 context and class actions for injunctive relief more 7 generally, that we don't have to show that each and every 8 person has been harmed. All we have to show is that the 9 system is so broken because of defendants' failures that 10 everyone is at risk of harm.

11 We have properly alleged those claims and,
12 therefore, defendants' motion should be denied.

13 THE COURT: Thank you. Mr. Potchen, anything
14 else you'd like to add?

15 MR. POTCHEN: Just a couple points very quickly.
16 They claim the state hasn't acted on indigent defense
17 cases. Really the judiciary oversees the state's activity
18 on indigent defense cases. That's the SCAO and the Court 19 Equity Fund referenced in our brief, and in particular 20 MCR -- the court rule, 8.123, that's cited in our brief.

21 They claim that the Court does not have to 22 enforce the Strickland standard because Gideon applies in 23 this case. But as our reply brief makes clear, the test 24 is set forth in Strickland. The Gideon case set forth the 25 rights, but the test was set forth in Strickland. We

Page 32

1 believe that completely applies.

2 Not to reiterate again, but I guess I will, they 3 are still attempting to establish there is a sixth 4 amendment violation, and that is completely improper. We 5 disagree on what they're attempting.

6 We want to make sure you are aware that this 7 proceeding is about the remedy. It is not just a (C)(8)
8 motion. We are also bringing this under (C)(4) and 9 (C)(7). We have relied on the allegations in their 10 complaint.

11 And that's about it, your Honor.

12 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you. Defendants, State
13 of Michigan and Jennifer Granholm, move for summary
14 disposition pursuant to MCR 2.116 (C)(4), (7) and (8).

15 Defendants first argue that plaintiffs lack 16 standing and that their claim is not ripe pursuant to 17 2.116 (C)(4). The Court disagrees.

18 A motion under this subrule asserts that the 19 Court lacks jurisdiction of the subject matter. Whether 20 subject matter jurisdiction exists is a question of law
21 for the court. The Court must consider pleadings, 22 affidavits, depositions, admissions and documentary
23 evidence submitted by the parties.

24 The Court finds the plaintiffs do have standing 25 and their claims are ripe. The plaintiffs must not have

Page 33

1 been convicted nor must they allege a denial of any 2 request for new counsel for standing or ripeness purposes 3 as the defendants claims.

4 Defendants next argue that the Court lacks
5 jurisdiction because the legislature is the proper entity 6 to appropriate funds from the state treasury. The 7 plaintiffs are not seeking monetary relief from the state 8 to fund an indigent defense program. They are seeking 9 injunctive and declaratory relief. Therefore, that 10 argument fails.

11 Defendants also argue that the case belongs in 12 the Court of Claims, because the Court of Claims has 13 jurisdiction over ex delicto claims. Defendants contend 14 that constitutional claims arising out of civil rights 15 violations have been regarded as a species of tort 16 liability. All of the cases cited by the defendants 17 involve claims for money damages, an attribute of tort 18 claims.

19 However, the plaintiffs seek prospective relief, 20 which is purely equitable. Therefore, the case does not 21 belong in the Court of Claims.

22 Defendants next claim that the plaintiffs failed 23 to state a claim upon which relief may be granted pursuant 24 to MCR 2.116(C)(8). The Court also disagrees with that.

25 A motion under that subrule is a motion on the

Page 34

1 pleadings, which tests the legal sufficiency of the 2 pleadings alone. All factual allegations supporting the 3 claim are accepted as true, as well as any reasonable 4 inferences or conclusions that can be drawn from the 5 facts. The motion should only be granted when the claim 6 is so clearly unenforceable as a matter of law that no 7 factual development could possibly justify recovery.

8 Defendants have argued that the Strickland
9 standards should apply to the case at hand. Strickland 10 states that a convicted defendant's claim of ineffective
11 assistance of counsel must show that counsel's performance 12 was deficient, and that the deficient performance did 13 prejudice the defense.

14 It's not clear to the Court if the Strickland
15 standard applies to the plaintiffs' pre-conviction claims 16 of inadequate representation, but the Court does -- the 17 Court does not believe that it would have to delve into 18 the circumstances of each particular case as the defendant
19 claims.

20 Therefore, the Court finds that the plaintiffs' 21 sixth amendment claims state a claim upon which 22 prospective relief can be granted.

23 Next the defendants argue plaintiffs have sued
24 the wrong parties, also a (C)(8) motion. Defendants claim 25 that since the counties fully finance and control indigent

Page 35

1 defense programs at the county level that the counties are 2 proper parties to the suit and that the State of Michigan
3 and the governor should be dismissed.

4 While it's true the defendants have delegated 5 the responsibility for funding and administering the 6 indigent defense programs to the counties, it does not 7 mean defendants are off the hook. It's alleged that the 8 defendants abdicated their duties in violation of the 9 constitution. Therefore, the Court finds the plaintiffs 10 have sued the proper parties.

11 Defendants also argue that the Court lacks 12 jurisdiction to issue injunctive relief against the 13 governor and that governmental immunity bars the claim 14 against the governor pursuant to MCR 2.116(C)(4) and (7).
15 The Court disagrees.

16 A (C)(7) motion asserts that the claim is barred 17 because of immunity granted by law. A party may support a 18 (C)(7) motion by affidavits, depositions, admissions and 19 other documentary evidence. If such material is 20 submitted, it must be considered. Moreover, the substance 21 or content of the supporting proofs must be admissible 22 into evidence. The contents of the complaint are 23 accepted.

24 Michigan law cannot immunize the governor from 25 federal claims due to preemption. The governor is also

Page 36

1 not immunized from the state law claims as the governor's 2 not being sued for tort liability. The suit is for 3 equitable relief. Therefore, the governor is not immune 4 from liability.

5 Defendants lastly argue that governmental 6 immunity bars relief against the State of Michigan. The 7 Court in Smith noted that governmental immunity is not 8 available in a state court action where it's alleged that 9 the state has violated a right conferred by Michigan
10 Constitution.

11 Plaintiffs' claims allege that the defendants
12 violated plaintiffs' due process rights under the Michigan
13 Constitution. Plaintiffs have stated a prima facie claim 14 and, therefore, governmental immunity does not bar suit 15 against the State of Michigan. Therefore, the entire 16 motion is denied.

17 And now on the next motion for certification.

18 MR. POTCHEN: Your Honor, staying on this 19 motion, we'd like to move to stay this case in light of 20 the governmental immunity grounds. The stay is automatic 21 as to our other claim. It is our position that the Court
22 of Appeals should address this issue before we proceed 23 with the other action.

24 THE COURT: Anything you'd like to say?

25 MR. STEINBERG: We'd like to go forward with

CondenseIt!™

Page 37

1 discovery, if we could. You know, there's -- we're not 2 asking -- there's no major court ruling changing anything
 3 right now. All the Court has held is we have properly
 4 pled a claim. And this is going to be a lengthy 5 proceeding. We'd like to get going on this as soon as we 6 can on discovery.

7 THE COURT: Anything else, Mr. Potchen?

8 MR. POTCHEN: Your Honor, we believe that you've 9 made some significant rulings here that should be reviewed 10 by the Court of Appeals.

11 THE COURT: I think I'll stay it. It doesn't 12 change the nature of the harm, so we'll go ahead and do 13 that.

14 How long do you think that's going to take?
 15 They just dropped their expedited docket at the Court of 16 Appeals, so any idea? Does anybody have any idea?

17 MR. EAMAN: Six to twelve months, your Honor.

18 MR. POTCHEN: So we have an order.

19 THE COURT: Six to twelve months, that's going 20 to make my docket look real bad.

21 MR. STEINBERG: We have people suffering
 22 irreparable harm --

23 THE COURT: I understand.

24 MR. STEINBERG: -- and it's going to be another 25 year.

Page 38

1 THE COURT: Go ahead on your motion for class
 2 certification.

3 MR. POTCHEN: I believe -- your Honor, if we're 4 going to stay this, are you still going to go forward with 5 the class certification?

6 THE COURT: Let's go ahead and do that too. You 7 can appeal that too.

8 MR. POTCHEN: Do I even need to argue?

9 MS. KENNEDY: Good morning, your Honor.

10 THE COURT: Good morning.

11 MR. EAMAN: My name is Elizabeth Kennedy, and 12 I'm an attorney with the firm of Cravath, Swaine and 13 Moore. I'm going to discuss today why the Court should 14 grant plaintiffs' motion for class certification pursuant 15 to Michigan Court Rule 3.501.

16 I note at the outset that two of the elements of 17 MCR 3.501 are not in dispute. These are the numerosity 18 requirement and the requirement that the named plaintiffs 19 adequacy -- are adequate as class representatives. I will 20 focus, therefore, on three subsections of the rule that 21 are in dispute, commonality, typicality and superiority.

22 Moving first to commonality, the plaintiffs have 23 alleged in the complaint and we argue in our motion how 24 our claims meet the commonality requirements. The 25 defendants have made essentially one argument in response,

Page 39

1 and it is an argument that drives not only their 2 commonality argument, but also the typicality and 3 superiority, and that's their contention that Strickland
 4 applies to the claims in the complaint.

5 That is wrong, as my co-counsel argued and as 6 the Court agreed, because the plaintiffs are not bringing 7 individual effective inassistance of counsel claims. The 8 success of this case does not rise or fall on the outcome 9 of criminal proceedings of each of the class members.

10 Rather, the case rests on several common issues 11 of law and fact that predominate over individual issues of 12 these plaintiffs, which is whether the defendants are 13 violating their functional obligation, whether the 14 violations create systemic deficiencies in the indigent 15 defense system, whether the deficiencies have resulted in 16 inadequate legal representation and harm, and whether 17 those deficiency claims are all common.

18 These are the issues that constitute the common 19 core in this case. They have affected all class members 20 in the same way, so the claims we plead in the complaint 21 depend on these questions.

22 Plaintiffs claims of systemic deficiencies and 23 imminent risk of harm to their constitutional rights don't 24 depend on a showing of actual injury to all members of the 25 class. Just to be clear, the plaintiffs aren't pleading

Page 40

1 that they face imminent risk of harm from these systemic 2 deficiencies.

3 The proof in this case, therefore, will not 4 focus on the results of individual proceedings. As the 5 Court just noted, the Court will not have to delve into 6 the circumstances of each criminal case to grant the 7 relief. The Court will not be required to conduct mini 8 trials to make any legal ruling or finding of fact as to 9 the circumstance of each class member.

10 Courts routinely certify classes seeking 11 systemic equitable relief. We mentioned some of these 12 cases in our motion and our reply brief. These courts 13 recognize that such cases are not focused on individual 14 harms but on systemic harms.

15 So systemic class actions in federal courts have 16 held that cases seeking only equitable relief typically 17 present common questions satisfying Federal Rule of Civil 18 Procedure 23(b)(2). We have discussed some of these cases 19 in our motion cases.

20 One point I need to clarify is that in our brief 21 we suggested that the commonality requirement under the 22 federal rule is the same as the commonality requirement
 23 under Michigan law, and that is not quite accurate.

24 While there are differences in the way the two 25 commonality rules are phrased, we believe analogies to

1 these class actions in federal courts are helpful here 2 because, as in those cases, this Court should look to the 3 allegations that the defendants have acted in ways that 4 affect classes members similarly or identically and the 5 fact that the relief we seek is not determined by 6 individual determination of causation and harm. 7 Defendants point to a number of cases in which 8 the Court declined to certify classes. Unlike this case, 9 virtually all those claims involve damages claims, damages 10 cases, individual relief. 11 And in many such cases the courts had to be 12 concerned with cases of individual harm and causation and 13 applying different legal standards to the claims of 14 different plaintiffs. And these individuals' specific 15 inquiries are necessary to ensure that each member of the 16 class merits his or her portion of claimed damages. 17 That's not an issue here where the relief sought 18 is conjunctive and declaratory relief. In Michigan and 19 elsewhere courts have found commonality where the key 20 question relates to a policy or practice that affects all 21 class members in the same way. 22 We discussed many of these cases in our papers. 23 That's exactly what we alleged here with respect to the 24 systemic deficiencies resulting from defendants' 25 abdication of their constitutional responsibilities.	1 this class, pending prosecutions will stop and convicted 2 criminals will seek to overturn their convictions. 3 There are a number of problems with that 4 argument. First, a ruling by this Court in plaintiffs' 5 favor on the merits of this case would not automatically 6 apply to individuals who have already been convicted. 7 Those individuals would still have to meet the Strickland 8 standard. 9 Now, plaintiffs do agree that a ruling in our 10 favor would apply to members of the class -- people who 11 are members of the class as of the time of the ruling. 12 And that could be a substantial number of people, but size 13 alone does not make a class unmanageable. 14 This Court has the power to fashion a suitable 15 remedy when the time for fashioning a remedy arrives. But 16 because such a remedy would be focused on systemic issues, 17 it would not create manageability problems with respect to 18 manageability concerns generally related to the 19 applicability of different legal standards and the 20 requirement of mini trials on individuals. Neither of 21 those circumstances would arise here. 22 And defendants argument, if given credence, 23 would have foreclosed several class actions that sought 24 systemic redress of violations of constitutional rights, 25 such as the prison reform litigation. But courts in those
Page 42 1 Turning to the typicality requirement just 2 briefly, the named plaintiffs have claimed that they are 3 typical of the class members who they seek to represent. 4 Their claims arise from the same course of conduct that 5 gives rise to the claims of other class members. 6 They also claim -- we also allege that they 7 are -- the same legal standard and the same legal theory 8 applies to their claims. Again, the defendants' argument 9 in response is simply that Strickland applies and that you 10 must look at the individual cases, the individual facts of 11 the named plaintiffs' cases which vary from the rest of 12 the class. 13 Again, because this case revolves around 14 defendants' actions and the inadequate defense system and 15 the systemic deficiencies and class-wide risk of harm, we 16 claim that's simply not correct. For that reason the 17 plaintiffs satisfy the typicality requirement. 18 Finally, the proposed class satisfies the 19 Supreme Court requirement. Our papers outline the ways in 20 which the case fulfills the factors listed in rule 21 3.501(A)(2). Defendants don't dispute the application of 22 any of those factors in their opposition. I'll focus on 23 the arguments they do make. 24 In response to something defendants offer a 25 parade of horrors. They argue if the Court certifies	Page 44 1 cases did not prevent groups of plaintiffs from 2 vindicating their constitutional rights on the grounds 3 that any potential remedy could have been brought, nor 4 would the gates of the prison swing open when courts found 5 that conditions of confinement were unconstitutional. 6 Rather, the courts and the parties often find a 7 way in these cases to fashion the relief requested in a 8 manner that is not disruptive to the existing system. 9 Finally, defendants say that maintaining this 10 action is inappropriate as a class action because there 11 are other more suitable vehicles for adjudicating 12 plaintiffs' claim. We explain in our papers why the 13 alternative remedies defendants propose are inadequate. 14 My co-counsel also discussed that. And we believe it 15 fully applies here. 16 In conclusion, your Honor, plaintiffs have 17 satisfied every prerequisite of MCR 3.501. We also believe 18 this case exemplifies why we have class actions, which is 19 to provide a sufficient avenue for obtaining justice for 20 many people suffering the same wrong. We may have the 21 ability to validate the wrong independently. 22 One last point I'd like to make involves the 23 notice requirement. We did not address that in our 24 papers. But we are aware of other cases that are similar 25 to this one where the plaintiffs and defendants were able

1 to work out a viable method of notifying members of the 2 class. And should the Court grant our motion, we would be 3 happy to work with the defendants and work with the Court 4 to come up with the proper language for the notice and 5 find the best way of publicizing the notice to the members 6 of the class. 7 Thank you. 8 THE COURT: Thank you. Mr. Potchen. 9 MR. POTCHEN: Your Honor, they have not shown 10 any reason why class action is a superior form to 11 adjudicate this action. If, as they claim and as this 12 Court has already ruled, it is not an issue of damages and 13 they are only seeking prospective injunctive relief, there 14 is no reason to maintain this case as a class action. The 15 prospective relief they're seeking would be the same if it 16 was one person or 100 people or 1,000 people. 17 This -- as they claim this is a systemic claim. 18 Therefore, there is no showing that a class action is the 19 most convenient way to decide the legal issues that they 20 are presenting. It would actually create larger problems. 21 Not every proposed class member will have an 22 ineffective public defender representing them. Also not 23 every class member will have an ineffective assistance of 24 counsel claim. The class action would actually provide a 25 whole host of problems that are not necessary in this	1 County person. Mr. Jose Davila, he was sentenced on April 2 12th, 2007. Mr. Steven Ray Connor who was sentenced, it 3 looks likes he's on parole right now. He's a parolee. 4 Heath Undercutty, on 1/27/07 -- I'm not sure if there's a 5 decision against him. 6 There might be a couple other defendants, but 7 most don't fall within the case. So it's our position 8 they cannot adequately represent the class. They fail the 9 adequacy prong. 10 Also the class action lacks the typicality and 11 commonality needed for a class action. Their attempt to 12 certify the class is misleading. The class is not just 13 indigent criminal defendants who have or may have public 14 defenders. But they must also show that these people will 15 have their constitutional rights violated. 16 This generalized constitutional standard without 17 regard to this particular case is not the purpose of the 18 sixth amendment, as we've said before. And also there's a 19 difference in the county public defense systems as 20 referenced in their complaint. Berrian and Muskegon 21 Counties have accounts with local attorneys. Genesee 22 County counsel has an assigned system. 23 Plaintiffs' complaint also recognizes 24 differences in the situations involving judges who won't 25 grant counsel to defendant, in fact in paragraph 110, if
Page 46 1 case. 2 How -- they've even raised, how are we going to 3 give notice to the class members? How are we going to 4 determine who actually the class members are? And then 5 how are we going to ensure they are made members of the 6 class throughout the time a decision in this case is 7 rendered? 8 In fact one of the plaintiffs already, 9 Mr. Secrest, is no longer a class member. He's hired his 10 own attorney. They have not shown that this is a superior 11 form to adjudicate this action. They fail that aspect of 12 it. 13 Another aspect which we found out this morning, 14 it does not appear that these plaintiffs will adequately 15 represent the members of the class. Almost every one of 16 them have already been sentenced. Mr. Secrest has -- who 17 has hired his own attorney. 18 We found out -- and they're not telling us this, 19 but Anthony Taylor has actually been sentenced on February 20 27th, '07. This information is taken off the Department 21 of Corrections web site which we pulled up this morning, 22 your Honor, so it's public knowledge. 23 Christopher Lee Duncan is now a prisoner. And 24 he was sentenced on March 12th, 2007. Mr. Billy Joe Burr 25 was sentenced on March 12th, 2007 (sic). He's the Berrien	Page 48 1 the defendant makes bail. 2 All of those elements fail to show the 3 typicality and commonality requirement. Therefore, we 4 request the Court to deny the motion. 5 Thank you. 6 THE COURT: Thank you. Any rebuttal? 7 MS. KENNEDY: Yes. Thank you. Your Honor, I 8 won't respond to most of Mr. Potchen's points, because I 9 think they're well covered in what I said before and in 10 our papers. But I do want to respond to the point about 11 the adequacy of our named plaintiffs. 12 Mr. Potchen points out that much of the named 13 plaintiffs have been sentenced, and that's correct. 14 However, we do have three plaintiffs who have not yet been 15 sentenced, one from each county. We have Christopher 16 Manies from Muskegon, Steven Connor from Berrien County, 17 and Jennifer O'Sullivan from Genesee County. 18 But more importantly, your Honor, we believe 19 that the time at which plaintiffs should be deemed to be 20 adequate class representatives is the time that the 21 complaint was filed. And at that time each of our named 22 plaintiffs was in fact a member of the class. 23 The fact that plaintiffs cycle quickly through 24 the system and their claims become moot quickly doesn't 25 mean that these people don't exemplify the kind of harms

1 that are happening in the system and do not demonstrate 2 the types of imminent harms to which other class members 3 have been and will be exposed. So I do point out to you 4 that we do have three plaintiffs who are still members of 5 the class.	1 five factors the Court must consider in determining 2 whether the maintenance of a class action will be superior 3 to other available methods.
6 Thank you.	4 First, whether the prosecution of separate 5 actions by or against individual members of the class 6 would create a risk of inconsistent adjudications and 7 whether those adjudications would be dispositive of the 8 interest of other members not parties to the 9 adjudications. The Court finds that there is a 10 possibility of inconsistent adjudications with respect to 11 individual class members which would have a high 12 likelihood in resulting in varying standards being placed 13 on the defendants. Also these adjudications would likely 14 impair the ability of other class members to protect their 15 own interests.
7 THE COURT: All right. Thank you. I'm going to 8 certify the claim. Plaintiffs move for an order 9 certifying the plaintiff class pursuant to MCR 3.501(B). 10 Plaintiffs want the class defined as all indigent adults 11 who have been charged or will be charged with felonies in 12 the district and circuit courts of Berrien, Genessee and 13 Muskegon Counties, and who rely or will rely on the state 14 to provide them with counsel for their defense.	16 The second factor is not relevant since the 17 proposed class seeks equitable relief.
15 To evaluate a motion for class certification the 16 trial court is required to accept the allegations made in 17 support of the request for certification as true. The 18 burden is on the plaintiff to show that the requirements 19 for class certification exist.	18 Third, whether the action will be manageable as 19 a class action, I hope so. The Court finds the action 20 will be manageable as there will be no need to determine 21 individual damages.
20 The Court will only address the elements that 21 are in controversy, commonality, typicality and 22 superiority. Defendants essentially have made the same 23 response to the commonality and typicality elements. 24 Therefore, the Court will address them together.	22 Fourth, whether in view of the complexity of the 23 issues or the expense of litigation the separate claims of 24 individual class members are insufficient in amount to 25 support separate actions. Since proving the claims will
25 For the commonality requirement to be met there
1 must be common questions of law or fact that predominate 2 over individual questions. The claims of class 3 representatives are said to be typical of the claims of 4 class members if, by pursuing their own interest, the 5 class representatives will advance the interest of the 6 class members.	1 be highly complex and require the investment of 2 significant resources, the Court finds that a class action 3 would be more appropriate.
7 Defendants argue that factual variations in the 8 proposed class members' individual criminal cases defeat 9 plaintiffs' ability to meet the commonality and typicality 10 requirements.	4 The last factor's not relevant. There is no 5 monetary value being sought by the proposed class.
11 But, again, the plaintiffs are seeking 12 injunctive and declaratory relief and the defendants are 13 violating -- that the defendants are violating the 14 plaintiffs' constitutional rights. The Court does not 15 believe that it would have to explore the unique 16 circumstances of each proposed class member to grant 17 relief.	6 Taking all the facts into consideration the 7 Court finds the elements have all been met and the motion 8 for class certification is granted.
18 The Court finds that the plaintiffs' assertion 19 that the defendants have abdicated their constitutional 20 responsibilities by failing to provide adequate 21 representation meets the commonality requirement. Since 22 all the members of the proposed class challenge the same 23 deficiencies in Michigan's indigent defense system, the 24 typicality requirement has been met.	9 As to the notification, the Court orders that 10 plaintiff and defendant cooperate to develop a plan for 11 notification.
25 Lastly, the superiority requirement. There are	12 Thank you.
	13 MR. POTCHEN: Your Honor, we have an order 14 regarding the stay, and we've included that last ruling on 15 the order as well.
	16 THE COURT: Okay. Do you want to hand it over 17 to him to check and bring it up to me.
	18 MR. STEINBERG: Your Honor, on the issue of the 19 stay of all proceedings, if you don't have an objection, 20 we may be filing -- researching the issue to determine 21 whether it's mandatory for everything, including such 22 things as third party discovery, and possibly submitting a 23 Motion for Reconsideration. We just haven't had the time 24 to research. 25 And if you just look at the bounds of harm, we

1 have people suffering irreparable harm versus proceeding
 2 with discovery.
 3 THE COURT: I'm look forward to that motion.
 4 MR. STEINBERG: Okay. Thank you.
 5 MR. POTCHEN: And, your Honor, we also have a 6 motion granting our motion to exceed the page limit.
 7 THE COURT: No.
 8 MR. POTCHEN: We would appreciate that.
 9 THE COURT: I'll tell you, I got to page 20, and 10 I start thinking you were both repetitive. That's not 11 good, so no exceeding page limits.
 12 MR. POTCHEN: Okay. This was what we were told 13 to bring to the Court.
 14 THE COURT: You mean -- I thought you were 15 talking about future torture.
 16 MR. STEINBERG: Your Honor, excuse me, your 17 Honor.
 18 THE COURT: Yes.
 19 MR. STEINBERG: There's a question of whether 20 there's a right to appeal the class certification order at 21 this point --
 22 THE COURT: Is there --
 23 MR. STEINBERG: -- as opposed to seeking leave 24 to appeal.
 25 THE COURT: I don't know. Mr. Potchen.

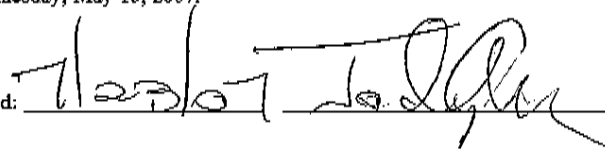

Page 54

1 MR. POTCHEN: Your Honor, we will research it.
 2 And if we have to seek leave, then we'll seek leave.
 3 THE COURT: Okay. The question is whether this 4 class certification is stayed, is that the question?
 5 MR. STEINBERG: That's the question.
 6 THE COURT: What difference does it make?
 7 Explain that to me.
 8 MR. STEINBERG: It doesn't really make much 9 difference.
 10 THE COURT: No demonstrations in the courtroom.
 11 Yes, you.
 12 MR. STEINBERG: Really it doesn't make a 13 tremendous amount of difference in what's going on at this 14 point.
 15 THE COURT: Then I think you have time to 16 present something to the Court.
 17 MR. STEINBERG: I beg your pardon?
 18 THE COURT: Then you have time to present your 19 research to the Court on this.
 20 MR. STEINBERG: Okay.
 21 THE COURT: You just told me, didn't you, that 22 you're doing a Motion for Reconsideration?
 23 MR. STEINBERG: Most likely, yes.
 24 THE COURT: Okay. So I'll hear more about it.
 25 Is there anything else you want signed before I leave the

Page 55

1 bench, which is going to happen?
 2 MR. POTCHEN: Yes. We have the order on the 3 stay.
 4 MR. STEINBERG: We'll be filing probably a
 5 motion to address it with authority.
 6 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.
 7 MR. POTCHEN: I'm handing the Court the order
 8 that's been looked at by counsel. Thank you, your Honor.
 9 THE COURT: Thank you.
